ABOUT WARWICK, RI

Founded: 1642

Warwick was founded by Samuel Gorton and eleven of his followers when the men purchased 107 square miles of land from Miantonomi, chief sachem of the Narragansett Indian tribe. Gorton had arrived from London in 1636.

Name: Warwick's name came from that of the second earl of Warwick in England, Robert Rich. When Samuel Gorton wanted the Massachusetts Bay Colony to stop its encroachments against him and his followers, Gorton traveled to England to plead his case to Rich, who had been named 'Governor in Chief and Lord High Admiral of the English Plantations in America.' Rich ruled in Gorton's favor, and in return, Gorton renamed the town Warwick.

APPONAU VILLAGE

Located in the heart of Warwick, Apponaug serves as home to Warwick's City Hall and is the spiritual "downtown" to the city's 85,000 residents. Settled in 1696, Apponaug quickly became a center for the area's small population. Anything to the west was considered dangerous wilderness. After being platted in 1735, the village experienced rapid growth. Apponaug Cove, sheltered within Greenwich Bay, provided the means for Apponaug to also become an important seaport, which it did during the "Triangle Trade" of the late 18th century.

Later, Apponaug became renowned as a mill town, hosting waves of immigrants looking for work and a better life. Today, Apponaug is quite different from the way it appeared even fifty years ago. Though many beautiful historic structures remain, Apponaug has fused the old with the new as many businesses have found a home in its quaint streets. Designated a historic district, beautiful Appanug is one of Warwick's most pleasant reminders of yesteryear.

T.F. GREEN AIRPORT

Warwick's T.F. Green Airport, also known as PVD, is the hub of convenient travel. Located directly off Interstate 95 in Warwick, T.F. Green boasts a hassle-free commute, service by all major airlines, 22 gates, private and charter flights, ample parking and convenient business and passenger services. Recently, T.F. Green was ranked third in Conde Nast Traveler's Readers' Survey, based on ease of location and access, food/shops, amenities, comfort and ambience. Over five million passengers pass through each year; T.F. Green is constantly updating its amenities to sustain its reputation.

Traveling for business? The 310,000 square foot facility offers WI-FI wireless Internet access and PDA site capabilities that link flight info directly to your PDA or laptop.

Planning a family vacation? The information center is fully staffed and ready to supply you with RI tourism information, help pick a hotel and even give restaurant suggestions. Customer service questions or flight information—look no further, the information center does it all, check it out!

Fly T.F. Green and discover why we're known as New England's hassle-free travel gateway.

BUTTONWOODS

The beautiful beach community known as Buttonwoods was once a summer playground for settlers and vacationers. Modeled after the Oak Bluffs section of Martha's Vineyard, the Buttonwoods beach community attracted families that longed for summer fun with traditional values.

The once private, now public City Park beach is one of Buttonwood's finest places of leisure. Visit the beautiful beach located in its own private cove, and enjoy a mid afternoon picnic, or a walk/ride on the bike path. When visiting in the summer, grab your swimsuit and beach toys; a lifeguard will be on duty to keep beachgoers safe and sound. Frolic in the park any season, as City Park showcases New England beauty at its finest.

CONIMICUT

One of Warwick's most cherished summertime recreation areas, Conimicut Point offers a vast amount of history, lush parks and beautiful new developments. At the end of the sandbar, the Conimicut Light is the landmark of Conimicut Point, and can be seen from anywhere on the beach. Just as Warwick has changed and evolved into the beautiful seaside community it is today, the lighthouse at Conimicut Point has changed drastically from its 1868 original, powered by kerosene, to the three story cast-iron lighthouse that stands today. Conimicut Light was the last lighthouse in the USA to be converted to electricity.

The City of Warwick has worked hard to keep up the beautiful seaside neighborhood. Today, many enjoy the new sidewalks, expanded beach area, waterside activities and historic lighthouse that make Conimicut one of Warwick's greatest beachside communities.

OAKLAND BEACH

Formally known as Horse Neck, this stretch of coastline was once a haven for summer residents and tourists. Dating back to 1873, Oakland Beach was first associated with its namesake hotel, built atop the Warwick peninsula. The City of Warwick's first passenger train enabled the Oakland Beach area to thrive. The well-traveled routes from Providence, New York and Boston to the Warwick coastline allowed many to easily access Oakland Beach. It was around this time of heavy traffic that the country's first "aquatic toboggan" was invented. Today, while riding the popular "water flume" at amusement parks, think of Warwick as the birthplace of this wet n' wild ride!

Stop by Oakland Beach, and have some chowder and clam cakes to enjoy on the beach, or enjoy more elegant dining at one of the waterfront restaurants while watching the sunset on Rhode Island's breathtaking Narragansett Bay.

PAWTUXET VILLAGE

Pawtuxet Village is not only the oldest village in Warwick, it's the oldest village in New England, settled in 1642. During the early years of its existence, Pawtuxet Village was continually beset upon by Indians, but by 1676, a peaceful co-existence was established.

Like the rest of the colonies, unrest under British rule began to grow and one of the earliest acts of defiance occurred in Warwick on the shores of Pawtuxet Village on June 8, 1772, when British revenue schooner the Gaspee, was burned. After harassing trade ships for years, the Gaspee was lured into shallow waters, off Gaspee Point, where she ran aground. Upon learning of the ship's plight, a raiding party was quickly assembled, and several boats stealthily approached Gaspee, killing its captain and setting it on fire. Although a large reward was offered for the culprits' capture, the loyal residents of Pawtuxet Village would never reveal the parties responsible. News of the event rapidly spread, and the Committees of Correspondence, a forerunner of the Continental Congress, were organized as a result.

Later, Pawtuxet Village played a role in the Dorr Rebellion of 1842, and was also a stop of the Underground Railroad of Civil War times. Today, the Village is a nationally recognized Historic District, with its tree-lined streets populated by dozens of colonial structures, historic homes, restaurants and retail shops.

PONTIAC VILLAGE

Next time you pull out your Fruit of the Loom undergarments, think of Warwick, the home of the biggest textile player of the 19th century. For over two centuries, Pontiac Mills has stood proudly, signifying the old Fruit of the Loom headquarters. Pontiac Village (the area surrounding Pontiac Mills) was known for its diversity, as jobs at the mill attracted immigrants from all over the world. Today, keeping with the times, a portion of the mill is being transformed into a 161-room NYLO hotel with many attractive amenities as well as a desirable location in the heart of Warwick. Upon completion of the hotel, other portions of the mill will be renovated into modern New York style loft apartments, retail shops and riverfront apartments.

ATTRACTIONS

PARKS

Goddard Memorial State Park

Ives Road
(401) 884-2010
Not all of Potowomut was fit for cattle raising, hay harvesting or general living. For many years a large portion of the northern shore touching Greenwich Bay was nothing more than barren sand dunes.

Philanthropist Henry Russell purchased this land in 1874, and began to cultivate it with a tree-planting project that would continue for thirty years. Russell would plant acorns and seeds of a variety of trees and then later transplant them into the area around the dunes.

When Russell died, Col. William Goddard purchased the land, built a mansion (which was later destroyed by fire), and continued Russell's tree-planting project for another twenty years. The fruits of the two men's labors quickly became apparent, as visitors from the U.S. Forest Service visited the area and termed it the finest example of private forestry in America, around 1920. After Col. Goddard's death, the 490 acres were bequeathed in his memory to the State of Rhode Island in November of 1927, and the state established the area as a state park.

The Park is open from sunrise to sunset, and offers visitors many activities: Patrons can bring picnic lunches, walk on nature trails, watch horseback riders, or visit the public Goddard Park Beach, a salt-water beach and bathhouse on Greenwich Bay. There is also a nine-hole public golf course (the Clubhouse phone number is (401) 884-9834), which is open seasonally from April 15 through the last Saturday in November. For more information on horseback riding, call Sue at (401) 886-5246.

Warwick City Park

A 126-acre park, located down Asylum Avenue. Salt water beach, plus bathhouse and kiddie play area. There's also hiking, bike paths, and ball fields. Legend has it that the first clam bakes took place here in the late 1800's.

George B. Salter Memorial Grove

This scenic park on Narragansett Parkway overlooks the Bay and hosts many of the Gaspee Days events. Recently renovated by the City of Warwick, Salter Grove is a beautiful place to spend the day.

HISTORICAL SITES

Aldrich Mansion

Aldrich Mansion

836 Warwick Neck Avenue
(401) 739-6850

Aldrich Mansion is situated on a majestic 75 acre estate on scenic Narragansett Bay. It was built during the "Golden Years" of Senator Nelson W. Aldrich, a Rhode Island native born to poverty but destined for greatness. It was here that Abby Aldrich, one of the Senator's eight children, wed John D. Rockefeller, Jr. (father of Nelson A. Rockefeller, formerly Governor of New York and later Vice President of the United States).

Along with the elegant Chateau itself, the estate is home to a carriage house, caretaker's cottage and boathouse. Originally built to aid in the transportation of goods to Warwick Neck, a railway and supply tunnel led from the boathouse to a 150-foot tower, and then to the Mansion. Construction on the Chateau began in 1896 by the firm of Carrera & Hastings. Nearly 200 craftsmen, many of whom were dispatched from Europe, were commissioned to create this dynamic structure. Some 16 years later, the 70 room Mansion, once known as Indian Oaks, was completed. Ornate paintings and intricate wood carvings adorn the halls and chambers. Italian marble, in a range of design and colors, is employed extensively for fireplaces, floors and bathrooms. The vaulted ceilings of a spacious receiving room are resplendent with golden richness. The vast living and dining halls, as well as a music and fine arts chamber, are located on the main floor.

A magnificent marble staircase leads to the second level. Six elegant suites, each with its own marble-fireplaced bath and bedroom, occupy this floor. The Senator and Mrs. Aldrich (the former Abby Chapman Greene), each inhabited one of the three largest of these suites, which include sitting room, dressing room, and walk-in closet. The Senator's suite holds a private staircase leading to the Great Terrace overlooking Narragansett Bay. Guarding the terrace are two decorative marble sphynxes. Above this second level are eight more suites, each with a private bath, once used for visiting guests and family.

Today, the elegant and charming atmosphere of Aldrich Mansion serves as the perfect site for wedding receptions, bridal and baby showers, birthday and anniversary parties. With its panoramic view of the Bay, the Mansion also serves especially well as a serene location for conferences, meetings and seminars. In the summer of 1997, Aldrich Mansion played host to the filming of a major motion picture, Meet Joe Black, starring Sir Anthony Hopkins and Brad Pitt. The film was released in November of 1998.

Aspray Boat House

Now a community center and meeting hall, this building is the headquarters for the Gaspee Days Committee, the Pawtuxet Village Association and Pawtuxet Land Trust.

The Bank Cafe

40 Post Road
The Bank Cafe was built in 1815 by the Rhodes family in the Federal style. A two and one-half story structure, the Bank Cafe was originally the first bank in the area. The top floor was once a finishing school for girls, but since 1874, when James Tinker assumed ownership, the building had been used almost exclusively as a dining establishment. The bank's original vault was used as a wine cellar. Currently a private dwelling.

Drum Rock

Drum Rock Road off of Rte. 117, near Rte. 95
Legend has it that this rock once created a deep, booming sound, like a drum. The common story is that Indians once used Drum Rock for sending messages. We do know that this was once a great gathering place for tribes converging near the Pequot Trail. The rock itself was delicately balanced on two points and could be easily moved by hand, or rocked by the wind, and with that rocking, it created the distinctive sound.

At one time, the rock was the symbol of Apponaug, its image replicated for parades. Today, Drum Rock is silent, having been moved from its original position because it made too much noise for nearby neighbors.

Warwick City Hall

3275 Post Rd.
(401) 738-2000
Built in 1893-94, this building features a six-story clock tower that is visible for miles around. Designed by the architectural firm of William R. Walker & Son, City Hall cost $75,000 to erect and was built in 1893 to replace the Town House, clerk's office and stables that had stood on this spot for the previous sixty years. On the main floor is the Town Scale and the Council Chambers are located on the top floor, while the remainders of what once were the city's jail cells are in the basement. Tours of the building are available by appointment.

LIBRARIES

Warwick Public Library

600 Sandy Lane
(401) 739-5440
The Warwick Public Library provides materials and services to meet the needs of the community. The collection emphasizes recreational and leisure materials in addition to current information in a variety of formats. Through its materials and programs for children, the Library encourages the development of learning and reading skills. The Library also supports the educational needs of students through the twelfth grade.

POTOWOMUT

The unusual thing about Potowomut is that you have to actually leave Warwick to get to it. You do this by driving south on Rt. 1 (Post Road.), and entering East Greenwich, then taking a left onto Forge Road where you re-enter Warwick on the peninsula known as Potowomut.

Purchased from the Indians in July of 1654, most of the land was acquired over the next twenty-five years by the Greene family, who used the land to raise cattle and harvest hay, which was then shipped across Greenwich Bay to the town wharf in Apponaug.

Around 1730, the Greenes built an anchor forge mill on their property (which is where the name Forge Road comes from), and in 1742, Revolutionary War hero Nathaniel Greene was born on Potowomut.

Today, Potowomut is a beautiful reminder of Warwick's colorful past. Drive or walk to the peninsula's eastern tip and you'll be rewarded with a stunning view of Greenwich Bay. Explore the narrow streets and you'll see a mix of older and newer houses overlooking the Bay. While in Potowomut, don't miss Goddard Park, RI's most popular metropolitan park. Visit Goddard Park and enjoy a nine-hole golf course, an equestrian show area, 18 miles of bridle trails, 355 picnic tables, 11 game fields, a performing arts center, a beautiful beach area and a stunning natural environment of forested areas with trees from all over the world.

3259 Post Road
(401) 737-0010
Museum hours: Winter hours are 12-5p.m., Tuesday-Saturday
Admission: General admission is free, except for certain events.

The Warwick Museum of Art, located next to City Hall in Apponaug, continues to bring local, significant, and culturally relevant works of art to the City of Warwick. Group and solo exhibitions are hosted in two galleries, the Main Gallery and the new Small Works Gallery on the first floor. Our poetry series, The Mad Poets Cafe: An Evening of Spoken Word Performances, takes place every fourth Saturday of each month. Poets from Rhode Island, Boston, New York, and elsewhere read original works. Live theatre and independent film are also part of our commitment to artistic excellence. WMOA is proud to host the improvisational comedy group Unexpected Company, whose standing-room only performances each and every Sunday evening have delighted hundreds.

The Museum School at WMOA begins its classes every March, and runs throughout the year, offering instruction for all ages in Basic Drawing, Painting, Color, Figure Studies, and more from classically trained instructors. The very popular Summer Art Camp, held each year from June through August, gives younger students a fun, exciting introduction to art in the form of five-day workshops, ranging from collage to acting and singing, to papier mache, to poetry writing! Please call for registration information. WMOA welcomes class and group tours.

(401) 739-3400

A Warwick retailing tradition. Originally the name of a ship built in 1789 in Providence, by the Brown & Ives firm, this was the first discount self-service department store in America. The founders of K-Mart and Wal-Mart learned about discount store strategies from Ann & Hope in the 1950's. Descendents of the Brown family opened the first Ann & Hope as a mill in Cumberland, RI, and began selling goods in the mill after World War II. The Warwick store opened in 1962, and despite a recent decision to downsize, the store will remain open in a smaller outlet version.

WARWICK NECK

Home of Rocky Point Park, Rhode Island's first amusement park, the history of Warwick Neck is checkered with fun, sun and festivities. The end of the Civil War signified new beginnings for the society of Warwick Neck. Affluent families quickly built cottages on the rocky shore of the emerging coastline. The combination of wealth and entertainment made Warwick Neck an exciting place to gather for good times, clam cakes and chowder. Bars and beaches surrounding Rocky Point Park were often filled with locals and summer visitors alike.

Today, the Aldrich mansion remains a prominent reminder of Warwick Neck's high society residents. The sprawling mansion was the setting for Abby Aldrich and John D. Rockefeller's wedding and the popular 1990's film, Meet Joe Black. Today wedding receptions and social events take place at the Aldrich Mansion, which has one of the most scenic views in the State.
